We can't fix the subway until we have a governor who actually makes it a priority. Andrew Cuomo has neglected the subway for the last 8 years, and New Yorkers are seeing the results every single day.

- #CuomosMTA now has the WORST on-time performance of ANY major transit system in the world.
- Just 32.2% of F trains arrive on time – followed by the C at 34.7%, and the 2 train at 37.3%
- In January, there were 76,287 delayed weekday trains, up from 60,455 the year before.
- Only 11 stations in the entire Bronx are accessible to people with disabilities.

Cynthia Nixon rides the subway every day. She understands that we urgently need a dedicated revenue stream for new capital spending. As Governor, she will invest in repairing our century-old infrastructure, starting with replacing the signals. Learn more at:

We can't fix the subway until we have a governor who actually makes it a priority. Andrew Cuomo has neglected the subway for the last 8 years, and New Yorkers are seeing the results every single day.

- #CuomosMTA hit a record low point in January, with just 58.1% of all weekday trains arriving on time.
- Average train speeds are slower now than they were in the 1950s, and delays have tripled in the last five years.
- Subway delays are costing working parents an estimated $17 per day in child care pick-up late fees.
- NYC has the least accessible subway system of any major U.S. city, by far. Of its 472 stations, only 112 can be used by people with disabilities.
